

Outsourced vs. Co-Managed IT

Discover IT service options that fit your unique needs

To outsource or co-manage—that is the question.

The answer depends on your current business model and the direction you want to grow. By now you've established that your IT needs a bailout, but getting your team the support it needs without blowing your budget is a challenge. Fortunately, you have options. You can fully outsource your IT support or deploy a co-managed model.

Co-Managed Services

Teamwork Makes IT Work

Have an internal IT staff that has more to manage than time to get it all done? Sounds like a co-managed model may be the solution you've been searching for.

- ✓ Maintain your preferred level of control over your infrastructure
- ✓ Fill gaps in expertise or hourly coverage
- ✓ Skilled IT experts remotely update and patch systems
- ✓ Get access to the latest research and help deploying new technology
- ✓ Free up your internal staff's time so they can focus on strategic projects
- ✓ Give your staff vacations or sick days without worrying about IT emergencies

Outsourced IT

We'll Do the Hard Work, You Take the Credit

If you don't have an internal IT staff but your mountain of IT concerns is growing along with the cost of handling them, you're probably best suited to a fully outsourced solution.

- ✓ Comprehensive IT solutions
- ✓ Shift your focus back to running your business
- ✓ We optimize the technology you already own
- ✓ Experts strategically build out and manage your infrastructure
- ✓ Flat-rate, industry-specific services
- ✓ Regain control of your technology, time and budget
